Changing Patterns for Tomorrow

January 1, 1963, marked the centennial anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation. The story of the impact of this decision on American life and culture is synonymous with the story of a nation striving to achieve, not only in theory but also in practice, the ideals of human freedom and equality.

In the one hundred years since the proclamation was issued, the role and status of American Negroes, as the people whose destiny was directly affected by this act, has been one of continuing cultural, educational, economic and political progress. This achievement has not been without hindrances, nor does it imply that the ultimate goal has been attained.

Langston University recognizes the demands inherent in the world's changing patterns for tomorrow and is concerned with developing the kind of educational experiences which will make for rapid intellectual and cultural growth for its students to make possible their fuller participation in the affairs of the world.

Langston University has merited and continues to earn a respected place in the system of higher education in our State and Nation. High academic standards, quality instruction, and a sincere interest in the individual student has enabled Langsto to give to the state and to the nation many efficient and dedicated educational, professional, religious and civil leaders.

We dedicate our efforts continuously to meet the challenges of change and develop for our students the kind of academic environment which will promote the fullest development of each individual.

Meet Our President

DR. WILLIAM H. HALE

Our President Speaks

On September 1, 1960, Dr. Hale became the tenth President of Langston University, the first alumnus to serve in this position.

He holds the M.A. degree from the University of Wisconsin in the field of Sociology, and the Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago in the fields of Sociology and Anthropology.

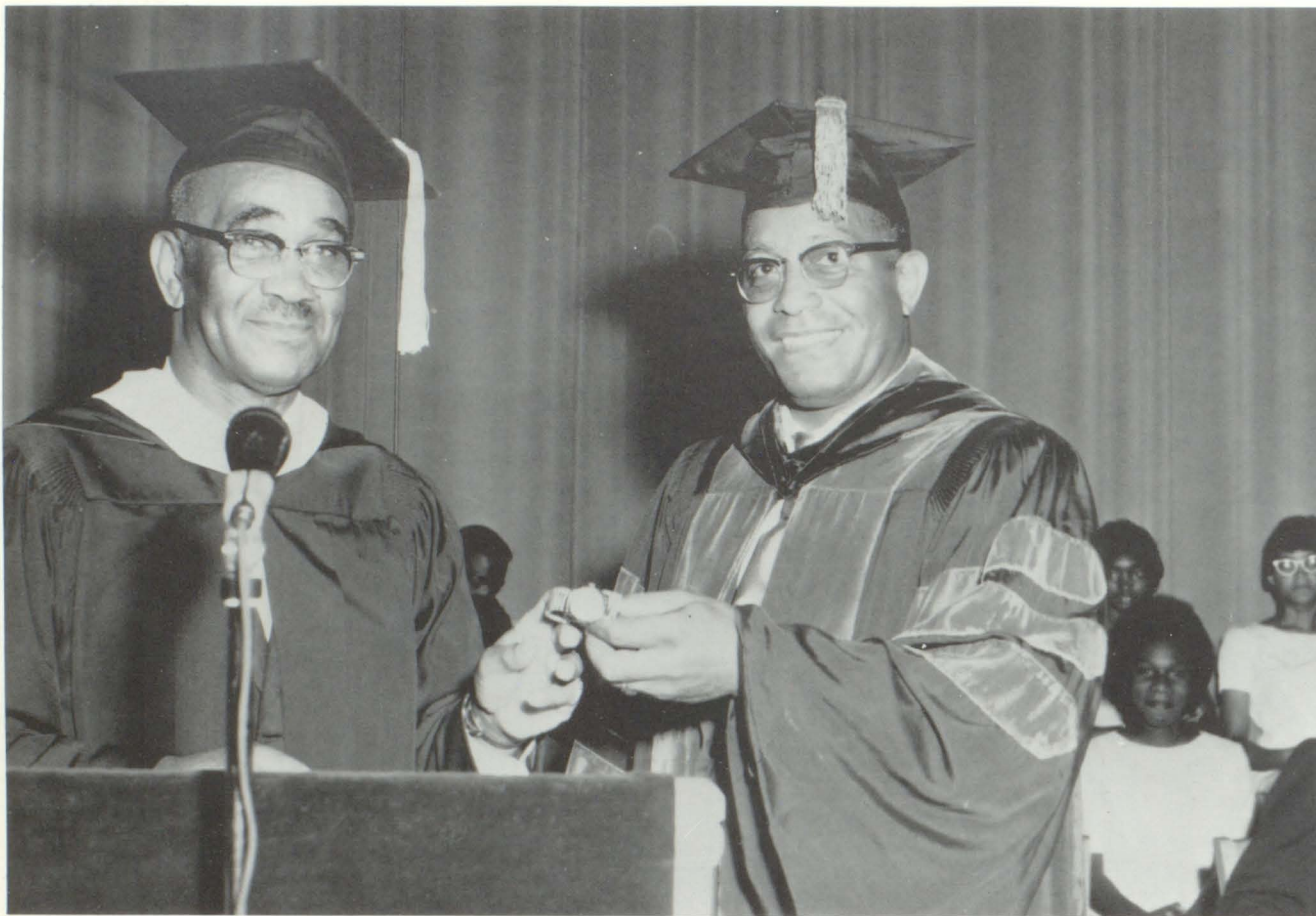

Meet our gracious first lady, Mrs. William H. Hale and the two children, Janis and Gina.

President and Mrs. Hale greet members of the freshman class.

The freshmen enjoy it.

President Hale presents to the retiring dean, L. G. Moore, left, a watch on behalf of the faculty

Dedication

Mrs. L. G. Moore, Assistant Professor of Education, Retired

Because

- *You worked tirelessly at all times to present to others Langston University at its best.
- *You initiated in us an interest in values which will remain with us.
- *You contributed your time to community projects which supported Langston University students.

We, the student body, faculty and staff, pay tribute to you, Dean and Mrs. L. G. Moore for your many years of devoted services to Langston University.

State of Oklahoma Office of the Governor

Congratulations to the seniors of Langston University and best wishes to the balance of the student body as you record the end of another year in the pursuit of your education. May you soon take your places in our society, confident of success due to your ability and energy and aided by the thorough training you have received at this fine institution.

Individuals and governments alike are now fully aware that education is the soundest investment which can be made. Modern society places an ever-increasing premium on the well-trained mind, and you are fortunate to be numbered in this elite group. Wherever you go, remember the educational opportunities you have received and work to see that others may have the same advantages.

In today's conflict of ideologies the culture which most fully develops the human resources of its citizens is likely to be the culture which survives and leads. The United States owes its international prominence to our national strength, which is based largely on our religious faith, our form of government, our free enterprise system, and our desire to offer the advantages of education to all who will put forth the effort to learn.

Oklahoma is justly proud of the achievements of our citizens who serve in every area of endeavor in every part of the world. Your activities will soon be adding to this impressive record. May your lives be full and may they shed glory on your Alma Mater and on your native state.

Henry Bellmon

Sincerely,
Henry Bellmon
GOVERNOR

Agriculture Department

The total Agriculture program at Langston University is built around the philosophy that the primary function of the division is to serve the educational, cultural, professional and vocational needs of students interested in certain aspects of agriculture. It strives to provide training opportunities to meet the changing needs in certain phases of agriculture as evidence in the State of Oklahoma and in selected agricultural fields of occupational employment opportunities.

Biology Department

The aim of the Department of Biology at Langston University is to prepare young men and women for their life's vocation. Today, records show that the United States is in great need of scientific thinkers. The Department has many graduates in such professions as medicine, nursing, teaching field and laboratory technology.

Division of Home Economics

The Division of Home Economics focuses its program of study toward the field of learning which provides knowledge and services primarily concerned with strengthening family life; uses the knowledge drawn from the physical, biological and social sciences, and the arts; and aims to help individuals and families to develop competences fundamental to effective living, in the economic, psychological, political and social situations they will face in the future.

It further emphasizes the need to develop constructive understanding and appreciation of desirable relationships, beauty of surroundings, high social, moral and ethical ideals, physical fitness, and creativeness in meeting our day-to-day problems of the home and family well-being.

OBJECTIVES:

The curriculum in Home Economics is planned for students who wish: (1) To prepare for teaching Home Economics. (2) To gain background training required for various professional fields. (3) To gain general knowledge of Home Economics for personal enrichment. (4) To acquaint the young homemaker with some of the managerial skills and techniques necessary to meet the needs of persons living in a modern and changing world. (5) To educate youth for the dual responsibility of earning a livelihood and of living an effective life.

The curriculum leads to a Bachelor of Science Degree in Home Economics. Vocational and/or general teaching certificates may be obtained on the completion of the degree program.

Division of Education

The division of education offers professional courses for the preparation and improvement of elementary and secondary school teachers. Specifically it seeks to guide prospective and in-service teachers in the selection of non-specialized courses in the major fields of knowledge; and to provide experiences leading to the development of competences necessary for successful participation of community living and in understanding, teaching and guiding children.

A degree program is administered by the division of education. A curriculum leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Elementary Education is offered for students who prepare for teaching in the elementary grades.

The Langston University Marching Band

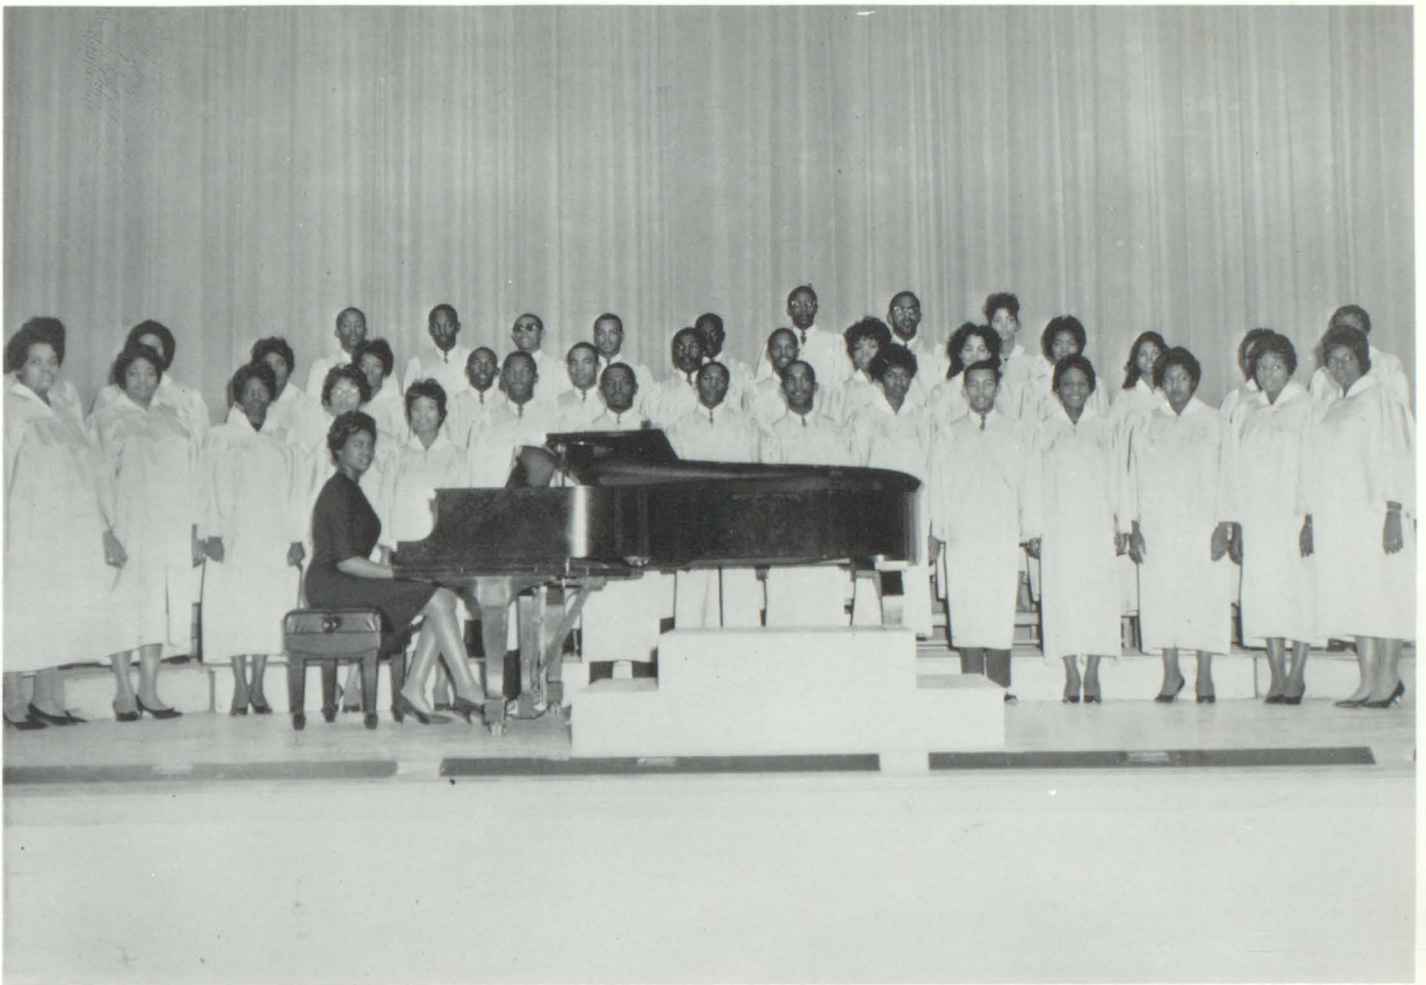

The Langston University Marching Band is one of three bands which comprise the Langston University Band. These bands play an important role in the program of the university. The Marching Band functions only in the fall. It provides colorful and enjoyable entertainment at all home football games, and on some occasions makes appearances at intersectional games. There are eighty-five members, including 31 who are seniors.

The Prep Band functions in the winter and at all home basketball games; providing spirit and entertainment for the spectators.

The Concert Band is composed of select musicians and performs music from the symphonic band repertoire. The band functions in the spring and its annual formal concert is one of the significant events of the year.

SCORE
GOLD MEDALLION LIVING
THE PRACTICAL TOTAL ELECTRIC WAY!

When your new home bears the Gold Medallion emblem, you know it leads the field in modern electrical living and comforts.

Total electric living assures your family a team of wonderful appliances for economical electric cooling and heating, all-electric kitchen and laundry, decorative lighting to beautify the decor of every area and full housepower with plenty of wiring, switches, and outlets.

Your new home is probably the most important investment you'll ever make. Protect that investment by looking to the future and selecting a Gold Medallion Home --- where flameless electricity does everything.
