"Institutions have been said to be but lengthened shadows of the men and women who have passed through her halls and walls. By this standard, as well as by others, Langston has been deemed a truly successful institution. Men and women of the highest caliber who have and are contributing greatly to the state and nation have 'trod her paths.' We are justly proud of our institution and her alumni and we humbly present this yearbook as a token of our esteem.

Your sons and daughters brave,
Will strive on with courage
Thy honored shrine to save.

"The above words, which arouse sentimental feelings in the heart of all Langstonites, have truly been made real by the deeds of you, our ALUMNI. From the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, you have achieved in all walks of life.

"To you who walk humbly, but proudly in your heritage, we salute you. We shall ever strive to follow in your glorious footsteps. To you for your lives of service, WE PROUDLY DEDICATE THE 1985 YEARBOOK.

Langston University started in 1897 in the above Presbyterian Church with an appropriation of $5,000, a faculty consisting of four persons and the president, Dr. Inman E. Page. With emphasis primarily on agriculture, course offerings were trigonometry, rhetoric, farm equipment, shop-work, and farm-building plans. In addition to industrial arts courses for men, beginning in 1900, the school offered sewing, cooking, and other domestic classes for girls.

Since her founding, Langston University has 36 buildings and facilities; an operational and capital budget of approximately 12 million; a faculty of over 96 persons; and a curriculum leading to over 52 degree programs. Langston is the only predominantly Black institution in the State of Oklahoma and for decades the ONLY institution that Black people could attend. The accomplishments mentioned above were not without struggles. But build we have! Her more than 9,000 alumni, nationally and internationally, serve as unquestionable proof that Langston University is and shall continue to be "a hallmark of excellence."

*"Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air."*

The sweetness of LU's flowers — her alumni — have not been wasted, because they have been nourished in rich red soil "high on a throne with royal mien" and their marks of excellence have been stamped throughout the world.

"We've Come This Far By Faith" was sung by the Langston University Alumni Chorus during the 1985 Founders Day Convocation.

Sheila Miller-Fugett, Miss Langston 1978 and chairperson of the Coronation Committee, was instrumental in enhancing the 1984 Homecoming Theme, "Moments to Remember", by initiating the return to the campus of former Miss Langstons to participate in the Coronation of Miss Langston 1984.

Living in a controlled, well-planned and highly supervised learning environment was experienced by 100 young people participating in the project Basic Education Skills and Training for Living in a Functional Environment (BEST FOR LIFE).

Dottie Ingram, head consultant for the program; Edwin E. Ketchum, former Chairman of the Board of Regents for A&M Colleges — who was visiting the campus during the summer of '84 when the program was in operation; and President Holloway.

The program which helped to motivate young people to develop their personal behavior, social amenities, and to teach them how to prepare for life and their future goals was written and proposed by Dr. Jean Bell Manning (right), Director of Federal Relations and Title III Coordinator, is the second of its kind in the nation. Dr. Lester Clark (not pictured) served as project director.

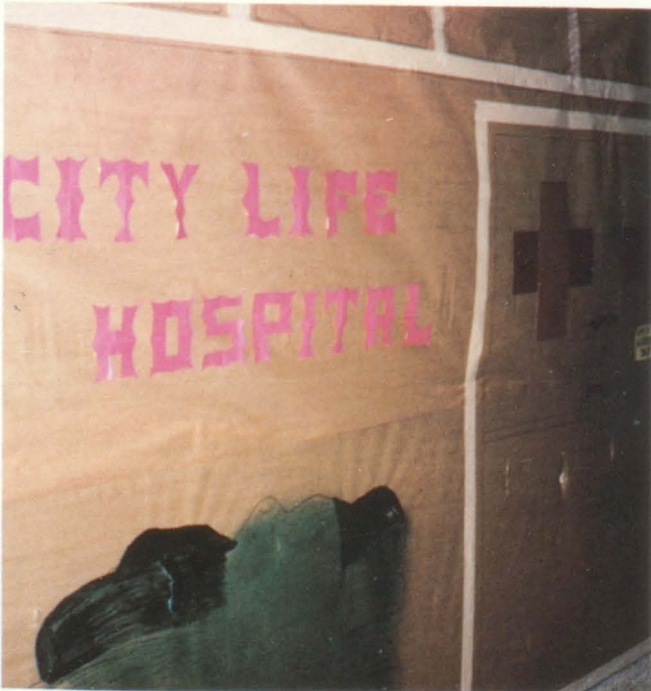

Dottie Ingram stated, "What is so unique about the program is that it gives young people the opportunity to develop their own micro-community." The micro-community consisted of government officials (elected by the young people), a town hall, a park, hospital, school of mathematics, a store, and a bank. They learned not only about government and how it functions, but also how to budget and manage their money — each young person received a stipend.

Leona Mitchell, Metropolitan Opera Singer and a native of Enid, Oklahoma, was honored at a joint session of the Oklahoma Legislature in the Chambers of the House of Representatives on January 17. "She was recognized for her achievement by Governor George Nigh, the legislature and Black Legislative Caucus," states Betty Price, executive director of the State Arts Council of Oklahoma. "She was also designated honorary chairman of Black Heritage Month in Oklahoma." Pictured with Miss Mitchell is Rhonda Johnson, manager of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company of Stillwater, who was instrumental in arranging for her to visit the Langston campus prior to her January 18 performance at the Guthrie Masonic Temple, sponsored by the Guthrie Arts and Humanities Council.

Since 1897, Langston University has survived challenges of overwhelming magnitude: "rumors of closing," firing of president after president, and most of all, a lack of operational funds without which an institution cannot exist. But survive we did! After 85 years, she still stands as a "Hallmark of Excellence" producing students that any institution in the nation would be proud to call an alumnus.

The development of new science and technology, sophisticated teaching machines and use of television and computers have been part of the onward march of organized education, even while its cost post increasing problems for both government and individuals.

But Langston University has remained a part of this onward march and students matriculating at the university have "Opportunities Unlimited" who can say, "I can be anything I want to be!"

Dr. Ernest L. Holloway, the fourteenth president of Langston University, wrote an article for the 1984 Homecoming edition of the Langston Gazette. The article was entitled "Holloway Reviews Last School Year." Excerpts from the article are as follows:

Langston University remains proud and healthy, and it is with great pride that some of the many accomplishments and achievements that have occurred during the 1983-84 Academic Year are shared.

Though ours is one of many challenges it remains an episode of success rather than failure. During this time of economic and social crisis, the Langston University administration, faculty, staff and students continue to rally to the cause of keeping our institution viable and strong where training, education and leadership development are given top priority. Therefore, the theme "Leading, Serving, and Succeeding" was chosen to open the 1983-84 year.

Excellence in education has become a significant statement in higher education throughout the nation. The price of maintaining and enhancing excellence for Langston University is indeed high. But, we all know that to be satisfied with less than excellence is to slip inevitably toward mediocrity, and that to remain passive after even a momentary lapse is more costly. We have not lost momentum. Our thrust is to continue the programs of a greater university — an active, continuous, and comprehensive undertaking designed to create and maintain the most favorable climate of interest among the university's various constituencies.

"Leading, Succeeding, and Serving" has been the Hallmark of Langston University's sons and daughters for more than eight decades. We still provide students "Opportunities Unlimited" to develop skills and talents as well as training for service to our professions, our community, and our nation.

A&M Regent Edwin Ketchum drops by for an informal visit.

The responsibilities of the president of any institution are very monumental. However, Langston University's #1 LION finds the time to extend the courtesies of the president's office, entertain celebrities, pose for numerous pictures and chat informally with students — one of the most enjoyable functions of Dr. Holloway's presidency.

The "Buffalo Soldier" occupies a prominent place in the office of the president. Andrew Lester, nationally recognized sculptor/poet, presented the above beautiful piece of art which he sculptured, using Cecil L. Williams as a model. "Buffalo Soldier" was the nickname given to the black soldiers during Indian Territory days by the Sioux Indians.

Thanks

Newsworthy items such as gifts to the university which are non-monetary often go unnoticed. Therefore this page is to say "Thanks" for the many such gifts as tapes, artifacts, sculpture, books, equipment — the list goes on . . .

William G. Edwards of Denver, Colorado, donated a slide presentation, "The Plight and Accomplishments of Black People in North America." Accepting the presentation is Rosalind Savage, Curator of the University's M. B. Tolson Black Heritage Library. Pictured also are Dr. Holloway and Dr. George Rogers, Vice President for Academic Affairs.

The lion, a symbol of Africa, is also Langston University's mascot. Therefore, it was appropriate that it was one of the gifts Dr. Holloway brought back from his visit to Kenya. Admiring the artifact is Toni Hill, a senior student from Boley. The trip to Kenya was sponsored by NAFEO.

Al-Ibrahim Mansour (center) presented a Saudi Arabian decorative rug to President Holloway. The rug is detailed by a lion and lad woven in the fabrics. Also pictured is S.G.A. President Victor Agbo.

The National Association for Equal Opportunity in higher education (NAFEO) sponsored a trip to Morocco for historically black college and university presidents. The trip to Morocco is just one of the many trips that NAFEO has sponsored which has provided the presidents an opportunity to obtain insight into the educational programs of different countries. Pictured above are the NAFEO "adventurers" and Haj Boujamaa Mohamed and his family.

DR. GEORGE ROGERS, Vice President for Academic Affairs

Dr. George Rogers took over as Vice President for Academic Affairs the fall of 1983. He was a junior high school dropout who left Langston University in 1961 with a degree in physical education. He received his M.S. in Education at Central State University, Edmond, and earned his doctorate in education at the University of Kansas.

A native of East McKeesport, PA, Dr. Rogers quit school in the ninth grade. He later entered the service and served in Korea and Japan. "It was a traumatic experience passing a GED and enrolling in college without ever attending high school," he recalls.

"Langston motivated me to higher goals. I'll always remember my years at LU. People on this campus put a lot of work into motivating me, and that included everyone from the president to custodians. I was always made to feel that I was somebody, and in the process, I showed more respect for myself and other people.

"The faculty is the life-blood of any institution, and we must maximize it to the fullest. You have to show the student you care, and hopefully Langston never loses this quality. 'You are somebody and we care' is the message we must get across to our students."

Dr. Rogers is living proof that Langston University is as skilled as a Mayo Clinic surgeon when it comes to "closing the gap."

Central Committee for Northern Province of Zambia, Africa, L. H. Ng'andu, visited the Langston Dairy Goat Research Project during a fact-finding tour of the United States. Mr. Ng'andu stated that he hoped that Zambia may one day have a goat dairy program patterned after the one set up at Langston University. He said that the project of raising dairy goats caught his attention primarily because Zambia is a poor country without the resources necessary for raising cattle or going in to other expensive ventures.

While on campus, he was able to see also the first phases of the caged fish culture project and small farms project — all three projects are under the supervision of Cooperative State Research Services (CSRS).

The President of Langston's Student Government Association, Victor Agbo, who is also a native of Africa had the opportunity to visit with Ng'andu and exchange ideas on agricultural projects. Agbo, an agriculture major, plans to return to Africa and help the people of his country.

Though the tour at Langston was his next-to-the-last stop, Ng'andu said it was the most informative of his entire trip.

Legislators Participate In Black Heritage Assembly

Following the presentations by members of the Caucus, Victor Agbo, SGA president, presented each with a plaque of appreciation: Senator E. Melvin Porter, Victor, Rep. Kevin Cox and Rep. Freddye Williams. Pictured also is Dr. George Rogers.

"It takes a commitment to last and a commitment to stay," said Rep. Kevin Cox, chairman of the Oklahoma Legislative Black Caucus, during the Black Heritage Assembly. "Langston has had a very illustrious commitment. Langston's own Dr. Fisher scored a major victory for American Black people in her struggle for equality in education. She was the first Black person to attend Law School at the University of Oklahoma from which she graduated in 1951."

Members of the Caucus came to serve as an inspiration to the students and to tell them to be committed to a future with pride and dignity and to persevere in being leaders and not followers.

"I'm somebody. My history is rich and I am strong. I'm reaching for my identity," said Rep. Freddye Williams. She told students to learn more about their heritage and to celebrate and participate in each Black History Month.

Representative Cox commented, "Men and women are not committed to the cause and this is what makes the legislative job hard."

Senator E. Melvin Porter said, "You, the future leaders of today and tomorrow, must not subscribe to the racism of today. The future means that you take every opportunity offered to you. That you avoid marijuana, cocaine . . . Why? Because that is no future!"

She was also the first Black woman to receive the Life Teacher's Certificate from the Oklahoma State Department of Education

American Education Week

The observance of American Education Week, November 11-17, 1984, was an affirmation of the commitment Americans continually make to the educational system. Schools, colleges and universities expressed their affirmation by celebrating the historical development of education, examining the status of education today and predicting the educational design of the future.

A plaque was presented by Dr. Wesslyne Simpson, Director of the Division of Education, to Dr. Louise S. Coleman, retired Director, for the outstanding leadership she gave the division.

Otis Autry was also presented a plaque for earning the Presidential Merit Award for Excellence in Science and Mathematics Teaching in the nation. Autry is a Langston graduate and is presently a science teacher at Washington High School, Tulsa.

RUTH ELLISON SWAIN was employed at Langston University for 18 productive years. At the time of her retirement, she was Assistant Professor of Social Science. Mrs. Swain authored a book, Ada Lois — The Sipuel Story. Currently, she is completing a study of outstanding Black women in Logan County, Oklahoma.

WILLIS LITTLETON BROWN has worn many hats during the 18 years he has been employed at Langston. At the time of his retirement, he was Director of Institutional Research. A student said, "Hats off to Mr. Brown for his years of teaching, service and passing along his knowledge."

BENJAMIN MONROE has the distinction of having the longest tenure of any of the honorees — 28 years. He served as vocational agriculture teacher for eight years before accepting the position as Farm Superintendent, the position he held at the time of his retirement.

Kim Slothower Prock accepts a gift from her mother, Dr. Mamie Slothower, who could not be present. Dr. Slothower was employed at Langston for 19 years. At the time of her retirement she was Professor of Education. Dr. Slothower's contributions to the university cannot be measured.

VERA CLARK POWELL began her tenure at Langston University in 1963. For 21 years, she has faithfully and graciously served as Supervisor of the Health Center. She is a licensed Practical Nurse and a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority. Dr. F. W. Cooke presents Mrs. Powell a gift and "seals it with a kiss."

THEME:
"THANKS FOR THE MEMORIES"

8:00 P.M., MAY 9, 1984
WILLIAM H. HALE STUDENT UNION

Langston University

Larry "Monty" Prock and Alice Swain enhanced the Retirement Banquet by serving as Toastmaster and Toastmistress.

"Thanks For The Memories"

(DEDICATED TO RETIREES)

Thanks for the memories
 The friendships that we shared
 The good times and the bad
 We fussed and fumed and swore we'd quit
 But through it all we cared
 And we thank you so much.

Thanks for the memories
 You were always at your post
 You might have cursed, of course.
 But you drove through wind and rain and snow
 And always gave your most
 And we thank you so much.

CHORUS

Many the times have we chatted
 And many the times have we spatted
 But the good times are all that mattered
 For we did have fun and your jobs were well done.

So, thanks for the memories
 We cannot say enough
 To let you know how tough
 It is to see you leave us
 Cause missing you'll be rough
 But we thank you so much!

—Gladys R. Johnson

Sheila Jones, "Miss Black Langston 1983", sang the above song — which was dedicated to the honorees.

Margaret Johnson sang "Somebody Walked Into My Life", the song she sang at the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education (NAFEO) Conference in Washington, D. C.

John Harris played "Mirage a Trois", which he composed and arranged and won him the annual $500 Evelyn Pittman Scholarship Award. Daryl Baker assisted him on the saxophone.

Gladys R. Johnson, Chairman of the Retirement Banquet Committee, and Dr. Jean Bell Manning, who was responsible for presenting the "Occasion" and the beautiful decor of the Banquet facility.

Day Care Center Graduation

Mrs. Carrie Jackson, director of the Day Care Center, receives a special tribute from the staff and students.

The graduates: Julius Bryant Allen, D'Andreah La Rean Glover, Mary Shannon Earley, La Shaun Nichelle Smith, and Quain La'Fre Trice.

President Holloway presents diploma to Quain La'Re Trice.

The honorees sing "We Are The World" to the delight of the audience.

Mrs. Clara McGee, "Grandmother" at the Center, receives special recognition from Mrs. Dawna C. Smith, a teacher at the Center

“William H. Hale Sixth Grade Day”

Some sixth graders couldn't decide just where they wanted to wear their visors. Around the neck????

Sixth Grade Day was the brainchild of President William H. Hale in 1963. The Day was initiated to encourage young people to become more aware of the advantages of continuing their education and to expand the university's contact with them.

This year's "William H. Hale Sixth Grade Day" was attended by students from the following schools: Millwood Intermediate, Moon Middle, Jackson Middle, Langston Elementary, Boley Elementary, Harding Middle and Crooked Oaks Middle.

All of the students were given visors with the inscription "Follow Your Dream (the theme of the Day) Come to Langston University" as a memento of their visit. The Division of Education coordinated the activities.

The talent was "out of sight!!!"

FUTURE FRESHMEN

Because of his academic achievements and a strong recommendation by the Biology Chairperson Dr. Sarah Thomas (center) Daryl Baker (right) has become the first Langston student ever selected to attend the National Institute of Health Conference. Baker, a junior biology major from Guthrie, attended the conference which was sponsored by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NAIDO) to explain opportunities in biomedical research for minorities who are college juniors, graduating seniors and students in their first year of graduate study. Pictured with Daryl and Dr. Thomas is Dr. Walter L. Jones, a biology professor.

Tamara Hinds (center) was the recipient of the Lillian Rawleigh $5,000 Scholarship Award. Mrs. Rawleigh (left) presented the scholarship to Tamara who is a freshman and resides in the Town of Langston. Tamara met all the qualifications for the grant and plans to major in mathematics. Also pictured is Dr. Maurice Love, Chairperson of the Mathematics Department and Director of the Division of Arts and Sciences.

Willie Hurte

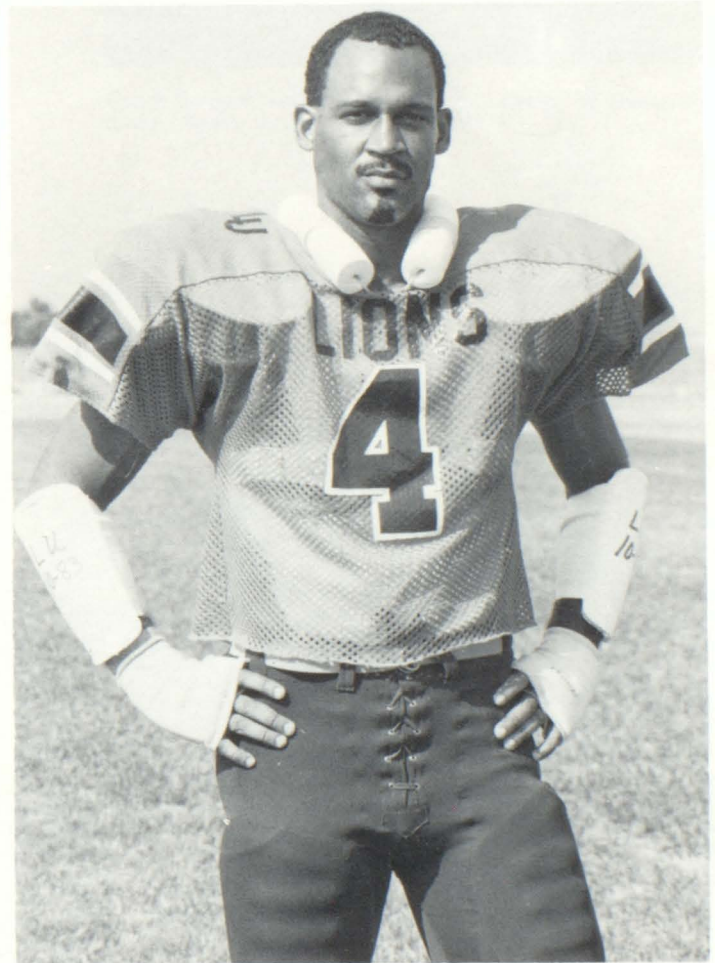

Three Wilmer-Hutchins High School football players, along with their fathers, came to Langston to sign football letters of intent. Signing with the Lions were (front row) Gregory Miles, Kenneth Miles and Joe T. White Jr. Watching the signings with great interest were Willie Hurte, Myron Miles, Marcus Jones, assistant coach, and Joe T. White Sr.

Defensive Team Captain Garner Pleasant; Football Queen, Kelli Webb; and Offensive Team Captain Tyrone Charleston.

RUN, BABY, RUN!!

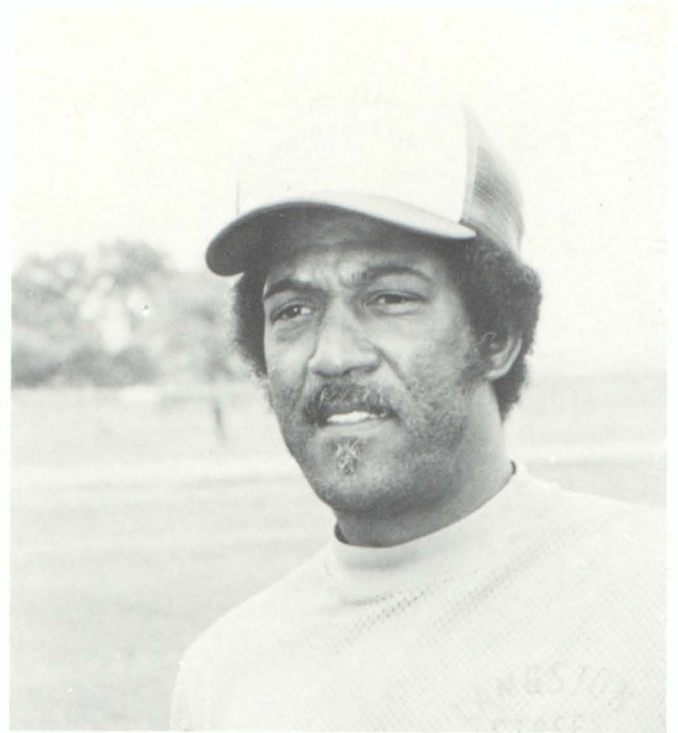

Garner Pleasant was the lone Lion named to the NAIA District 9 First Team. The junior linebacker anchored the Langston defense which ranked among the tops in the district all season.

Johnny Burks
Head Basketball Coach

Three years ago basketball Johnny Burks brought a new look to the Langston University basketball program. Last year, he had a slightly different look.

For the first time since coming to Langston the third-year coach was involved in a major rebuilding program. Even so, his team had the possibility of having some successes. However, only three veterans returned from the squad that went 22-10 last season.

Seniors Lathan Wilson and Gregory Langley were joined by Joe Onekweleuw who was with the squad two years ago to comprise the only experienced men in the Burks system.

"We are going to be respectable," Burks said at the beginning of the season. He added, "Our level of success is definitely in the hands of the players. How bad they want it, and how much they are willing to work will be the determining factors."

In 1984, the team lost a one-point decision to Southeastern State College in the semi-finals. In 1985, Coach Burks' young team promises to be one you should watch when play-offs get thick.

Haynes, Gayles Finally Inducted Into NAIA Hall

It wasn't planned that way, but Tuesday, March 19, 1985, was Marques Haynes day in Kansas City at the NAIA Convention. Haynes, long known as the world's greatest dribbler and a Langston University basketballer in the mid-1940's, was inducted in the NAIA Hall of Fame.

Haynes played basketball for Zip Gayles at Langston in 1942 through 1946 and the former coach joined his star pupil in the NAIA Hall.

Gayles, 85, and Haynes, age unknown, both received lengthy standing ovations during the induction ceremonies.

Marques was one of the original Harlem Globetrotters when the comedy troupe was formed in 1953. He started the Magicians before returning to the Trotters in 1972. He reorganized the Magicians in 1979.

Since he finished Langston in 1946, Marques' age has to be around 62 or so, right? "I am 37½ and holding," Haynes says, "and I've been holding for a long time."

Haynes and Gayles should have been inducted into the NAIA hall years ago, but it didn't come about until Jack Dobbins of Northeastern got things rolling two years ago. "I thought both were already in the Hall of Fame," Dobbins says. "It is long overdue."

Gayles, who lives in Muskogee, coached basketball at Langston 35 years from 1930 through '65. He is third in District basketball victories with his 571-281 record. He heads the all-time District 9 football chart with a 151-4317 record in 27 years at Langston from 1930 through '57.

Governor George Nigh signs a proclamation naming Friday, March 29, "Langston University Special Olympic Day" while Ivory Moore, chairman of the event, looks on.

STATE OF OKLAHOMA

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

Proclamation

WHEREAS, Langston University, a Land Grant Institution, established as an institution of higher learning; and

WHEREAS, Langston University through the land grant concept of education provides nonacademic educational opportunities for persons regardless of race, age, sex, religion or handicap; and

WHEREAS, Langston University Cooperative Extension Program has met the responsibility for providing many of those educational opportunities in areas such as Agriculture, Home Economics, Child Development and Youth Development; and

WHEREAS, Langston University Cooperative Extension Program is sponsoring its first Annual Local Special Olympic Track and Field Competition to continue to strive to improve the quality of life for all Oklahomans;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, George Nigh, Governor of the State of Oklahoma, do hereby proclaim March 29, 1985, as

Langston University Special Olympic Day

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Oklahoma to be affixed.

Done at the Capitol, in the City of Oklahoma City, this 27th day of February, in the Year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighty-five, and of the State of Oklahoma the seventy-seventh year.

There is more to being Miss Langston than what meets the eye.
 When you look at me, tell me what do you see.
 When you look into my eyes, can you see my heart?
 There is so much more to me than your eyes can truly see.
 Just as there's more to being Miss
 Langston than what meets the eye.

When you look into my life, tell me what do you feel.
 When you reach into my life, can you feel my love?
 There is so much more to me, than your heart has truly conceived.
 Just as there's more to being a true Miss
 Langston than what meets your eyes.

Dear Langston, as one of your daughters brave,
 I will strive on with courage your honored
 shrine I've got to save.
 Dear Langston, I'm reaching out to you
 But will you believe in me is my simple plea.

Dear Langston, Dear Langston, as your grateful daughter brave
 I will strive on with courage your honored
 shrine I've got to save.
 With a sis boom bah and a hip hurrah
 I rally to Langston, I reach to you,
 Langston, I plead to you, Langston,
 To believe in me, believe in me, believe in me as I believe in you.

The elegant golden lion pictured above was presented to the university by Beta Iota Sigma Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority in 1952.

Omega Dr. Timothy Knowles visited the campus of Langston University for one week as part of his internship of college presidencies. Presently, he is the assistant vice chancellor at the University of Wisconsin at White Water. He has been there for eight years including this year which is being dedicated to the internship.

Dr. Knowles is receiving his intern through the American Council for Education (ACE) program in Washington, D. C. The program has been in existence for 20 years.

"My goal is to become a college president," said Dr. Knowles. "Langston is one of three black institutions where I will visit and have the presidents, chief academic officers and vice presidents of academic affairs be my mentors," he added.

Dr. Knowles will also be training in Petersburg, Virginia, and Livingston College in Salisbury, N.C. He said that it is prestigious to be selected because the ACE is the only one of its kind in the country, and in his class over 225 applied.

While on campus, Dr. Knowles had the opportunity to visit with Dr. Walter L. Jones, professor of biology, who was also an ACE intern and a member of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity.

LU's #1 Graduate

SADIE WATERFORD JONES

Mrs. Jones has the distinction of being not only our oldest alumna (in years only) but she possesses all the attributes that can possibly be used to describe this dedicated, unselfish and intelligent lady par excellence.

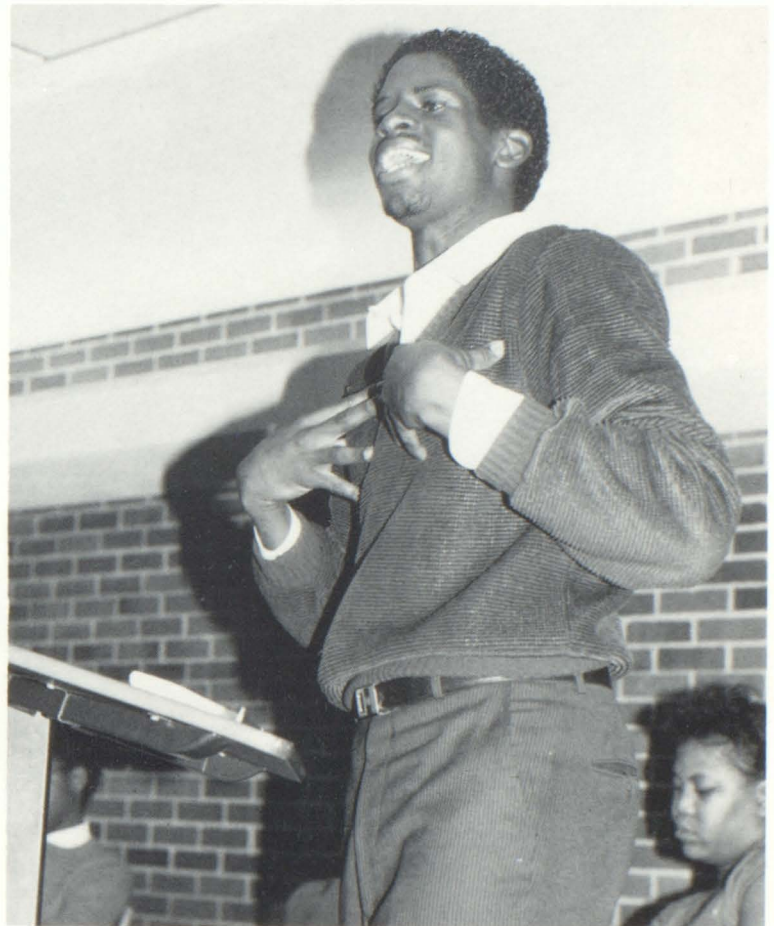

VERLENE B. FARMER

Verlene B. Farmer was presented an appreciation award "for many years of out-standing service, committment and dedication to the Baptist Student Union." Verlene, who is director of the Langston Baptist Student Union, received this recognition at the 39th National Baptist Student Union Retreat which met in Louisville, Kentucky.

Each year, the National BSU Director, Dr. John Corbitt, selects a BSU Director from one of the campuses as the BSU Director of the Year. This director is presented a plaque (The National Director's Award) to a director who has supported the National BSU Retreat for a number of years. Over a thousand BSU'ers from 125 college campuses from approximately 20 states attended this year's retreat.

Farmer has been participating in the National BSU Retreat since 1972. Each year, she leads two seminars on "How To Develop and Maintain An Effective Prayer Life." She has served as BSU Director and instructor of religion at Langston University since 1972. She attended the Oklahoma School of Religion; received the B.R.E. degree from Carver School of Missions and Social Work, Louisville, KY; B.A. degree, Langston University; and the M.R.E. degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, TX. Before accepting her present position, Farmer served as a missionary at Suehn Mission, Liberia, West Africa, from 1959-1966, returning to the states only because of ill health. She also served as Director of Christian Education at the Palestine Missionary Baptist Church, Kansas City, Missouri.

REVEREND KEVEN LEE

Reverend Kevin Lee talked with students about taking advantages of attending a black university during a rap session held in Young Hall Lounge as a part of Black Heritage Month.

Lee told students that he did not really appreciate Langston until after he had graduated. "Langston offers you small classes which enables the instructors to deal with students on a one-one-one basis," he said.

He asked them to visualize themselves as being somebody, adding that if they did not have dreams, goals and objectives they were going to run into trouble. "Start making goals for yourself now, and when setting goals strive higher than what you want," he commented.

Lee is presently enrolled at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. During the summer of 1985, he was privileged to be a part of an archaeological expedition to Tel Batash which is located west of Beth-shemesh and about midway between Jerusalem and the Mediterranean coastline.

Reverend Lee is a 1982 graduate who majored in corrections. He is a member of the Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc.

Dr. John Algee and some of Langston University's students discuss the medical profession.

The keynote speaker during a medical symposium sponsored during Langston University's homecoming was Dr. John Algee, who practices internal medicine and geriatrics in Washington, D. C.

Dr. Algee, noted for the number of students he assists financially, stressed the need for good study habits, the importance of basic science and other courses, and development of good reading and reasoning skills for those anticipating entering medical school.

Moderated by Mozelle L. Lewis, a Tulsa school administrator, the symposium was attended by Booker T. Tucker, a Carson, CA, dentist; James A. Northcutt, an ophthalmologist of Marshall, Texas; Thurml L. Banks, a San Francisco CA, obstetrician and gynecologist; Collis Johnson, a dentist who practices in Denver, Colo.; Leon Bragg, an Oklahoma City dentist, Clarence Wiley, a dermatologist, Oklahoma City; Charles Lewis, a Tulsa dentist; and Pat Young, a health center administrator of Tulsa.

Dr. Walter H. Whitcomb, director of the VA Medical Center, stated that the Afro-American family is a continuing strength in our society. Black men and women make significant contributions in every field of human endeavor. The educational and civic involvement of Langston University is an asset to our community.

Because of the above statement, the VA Medical Center hosted an awards program February 28 to pay tribute to three of Langston University's graduates: Dr. John Mark Flack, Dr. Martiece Carson Brewer, and Dr. Larry D. Wilson.

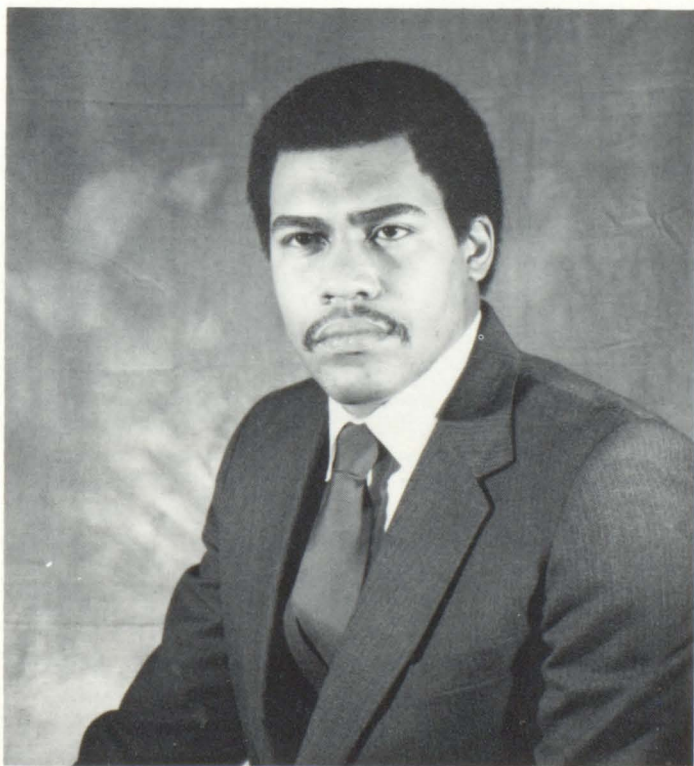

The purpose of the program was to recognize employees of Afro-American heritage (2 or more generations) who have been employed in the Health Sciences Center within the past five years. The awards to the Langston graduates is for special recognition of their educational accomplishments.

Dr. Larzette G. Hale was elected 1984-85 President of the American Woman's Society of Certified Public Accountants. She returned to her alma mater in 1960 as the wife of the late President William H. Hale, also an alumnus. She earned the Ph.M in accounting and the Ph.D. in accounting and finance from the University of Wisconsin. She is professor and head of the School of Accountancy at Utah State University, Logan, Utah.

Dr. Melvin R. Todd, Vice Chancellor for Academic Administration, Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education, joined the State Regents' staff in 1975 as Programs and Standards Officer in the Academic Division. Prior to joining the State Regents' staff, Dr. Todd was Director of Curriculum for the Oklahoma City Public School System, serving in that capacity from 1973-1975.

Michael Simpson, Sr., a Langston University biology major, was responsible for the system which reduced drilling costs over 2 million dollars for Mobile Oil Company, where he is employed as a drilling engineer at the Mobile Oil Corporation and Production, Southeast, Inc., New Orleans, LA. Mike earned the Master's degree in petroleum engineering at the University of Oklahoma.

Dr. James Baker Abram, professor and chairman of the biology department at Norfolk State University, was guest speaker for the 1985 Pan-Hellenic Workshop. He is senior grand vice polemarch of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity. Dr. Abram, a Langston University graduate, spoke to the students about pride — pride in their school, their heritage and, most of all, pride in themselves.

Nathan and Julia Hare have recently co-authored a book entitled The Endangered Black Family. Two prize winning social scientists and pioneers in the black studies movement are renowned for their work Black Male-Female Relationships. The Endangered Black Family is the final and compelling compendium of fifteen years of relentless investigation by the husband-wife team, told in the language of the layman, yet documented and authoritative. Dr. Hare, a clinical psychologist in private practice in San Francisco, holds two Ph.D.'s (psychology and sociology). He was founding publisher of the Black Scholar and the first coordinator of the black studies program in the United States. Dr. Hare coined the term "ethnic studies." He also is author of "The Black Anglo Saxon" and many other articles.

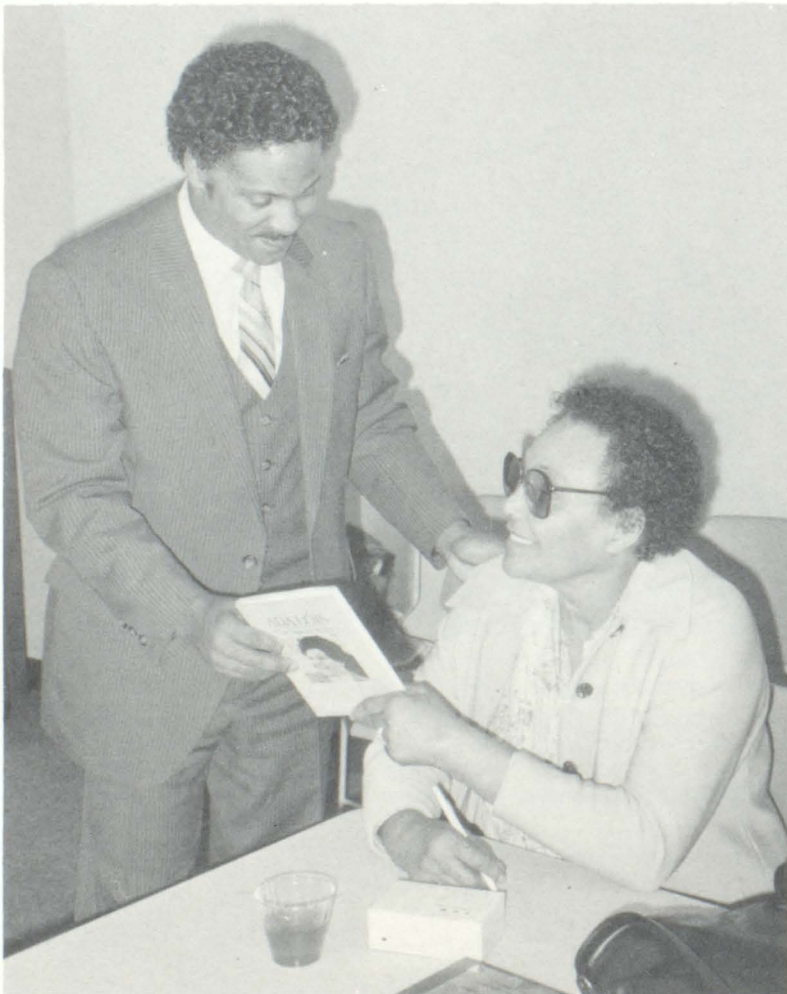

JULIA HARE

Julia Hare holds the M.M.Ed. from Chicago's Roosevelt University. As a teacher in Washington, D. C., she won the outstanding Educator Award from the World Book Encyclopedia and the Junior Chamber of Commerce. While at Golden Gate Broadcasters' RSFO Radio Station in San Francisco, she won the national Abraham Lincoln Award in broadcasting. Then came three years as a talk show host at KGO, the San Francisco ABC affiliate. She also hosted her own show for ten years. Presently, she teaches radio and television announcing at City College of San Francisco. Her husband, Nathan, also teaches at San Francisco State University.

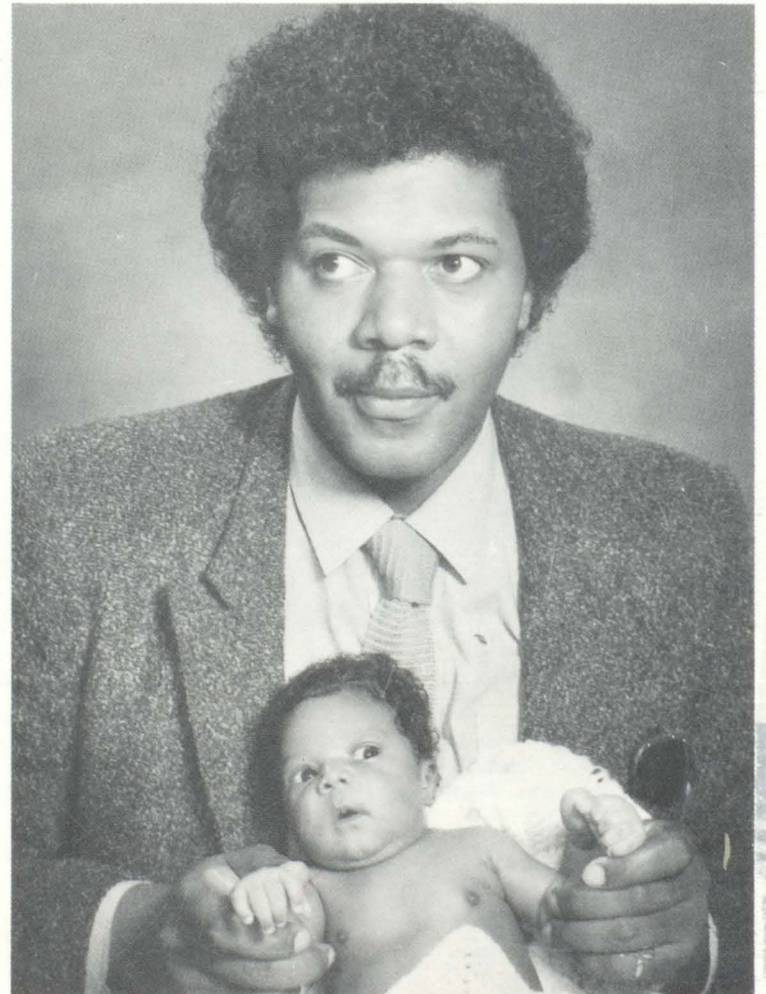

Both Dr. Hare and Mrs. Hare are alumni of Langston University.

Mrs. Zella Black Patterson presents History of the Black Family 1820-1984, which was microfilmed by Biographical Registry International, to Dr. Martha Brown, director of libraries. Mrs. Patterson is, perhaps, best known for her book Langston University A History. Pictured with Mrs. Patterson and Dr. Brown are Rosalind Savage (far right), Curator of the M. B. Tolson Black Heritage Center, and President Holloway.

Dr. Ada Lois Sipuel-Fisher autographs a copy of the book Ada Lois Sipuel by Ruth Swain, retired social science professor at Langston University and an alumna, for Dr. Edward Wheeler, Dean of Morehouse School of Religion, Atlanta, GA, following a seminar in Sanford Hall.

In his most recent book, Rayfer E. Mainor, award-winning poet and writer, shares an account of the celebration and joy of giving life to a child. The book, To Mister or Sarah Jean: A Love Story, earned him the nomination for the 1984 Esquire magazine register and National Father's Award.

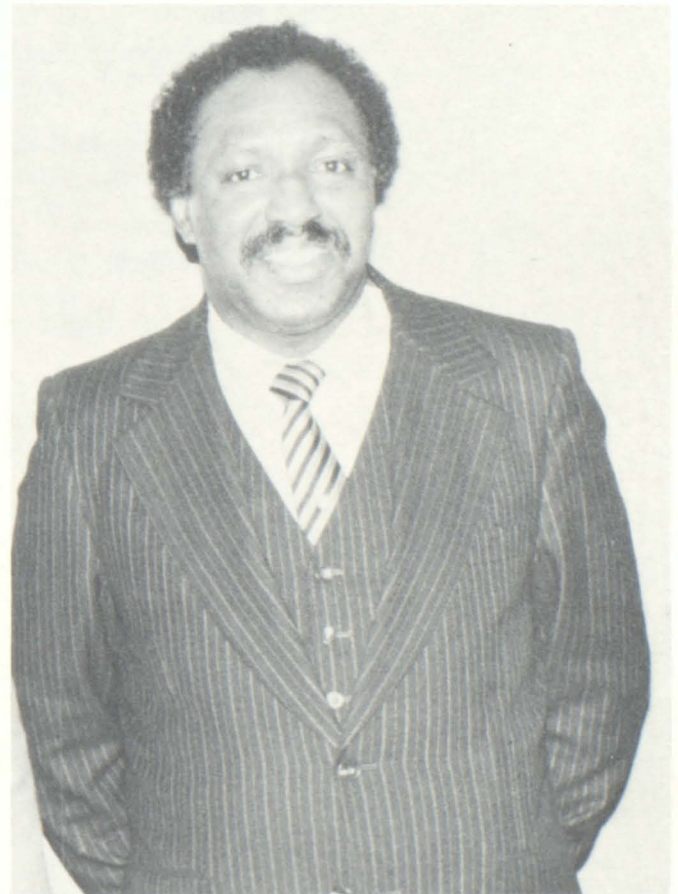

Mrs. Loretta Collier was the Honors Convocation Speaker for 1984-85. She is principal of Booker T. Washington High School in Tulsa, winner of the national maga school award.

She is pictured receiving the "Distinguished Alumnus Award," the highest award that Langston University can bestow.

Potpourri

Langston University scientists have been astonished at the overwhelming response they have received to their new "you-pick" strawberry operation. For almost two months people from nearby counties and from out-of-state flocked to the Langston University research farm to purchase strawberries for 50¢ a quart.

The oldest strawberry picker for LU's "U-Pick" strawberry operation was 83-year-old A. W. Collier of Langston. "If you want something to eat, I've felt you should get out and get it," he said. Collier returned again and again to carry out that philosophy.

The biggest strawberry of the day was found by Daniel Sharpton, of Stillwater, who came with his mother Sue to pick strawberries.

Gene Wheatley, agriculture commentator for KWTU, Channel 9, in Oklahoma City, was the speaker at the Green and Growing Workshop in Sanford Hall. The Green and Growing Workshop is the first of a series to be conducted in 15 Oklahoma counties. The sessions will teach pesticide safety to small and part-time farmers, future farmer groups and school personnel.

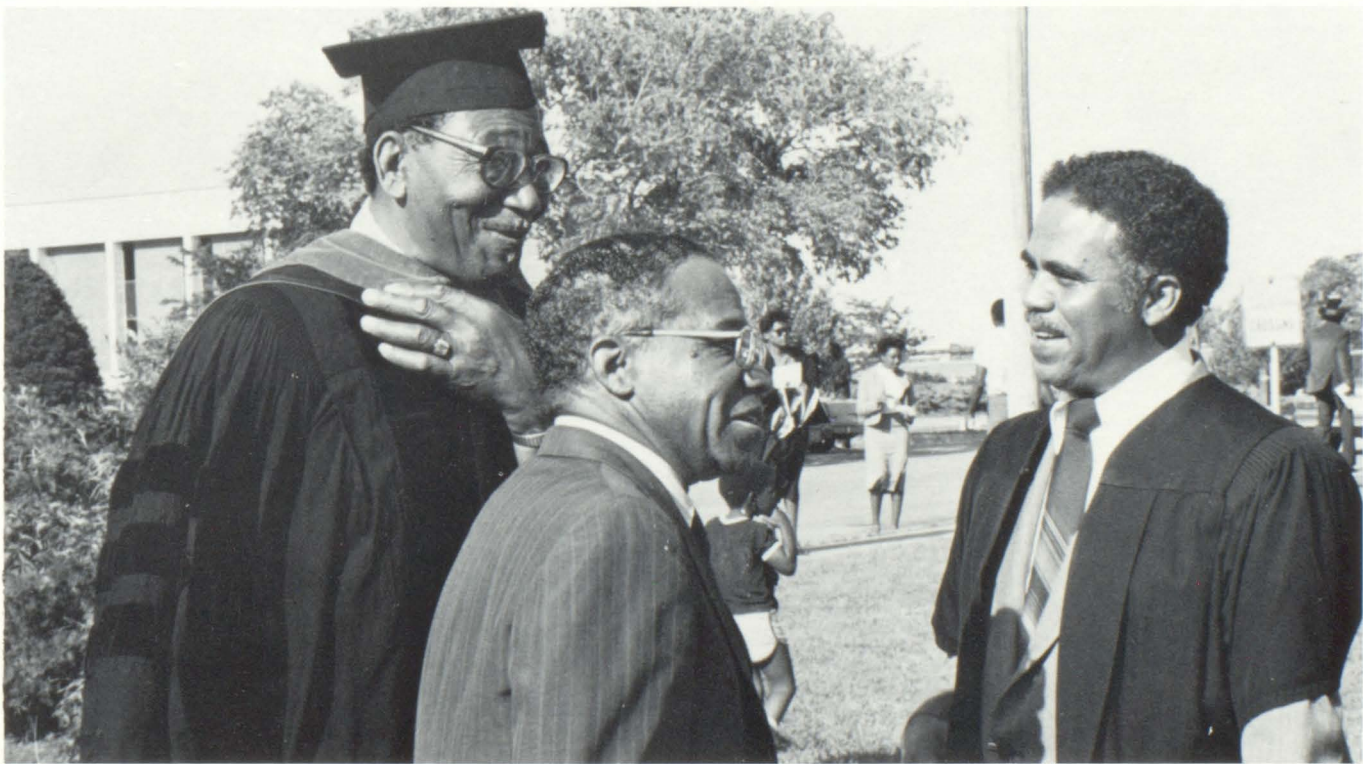

Members of the Ohio Players recording group were on campus last week for a Student Government Association sponsored autograph party. The group is making a comeback after having recorded several smash albums in the late 70's.

Jan Linck, RN, instructor in nursing at Northern Oklahoma College; Denelda Golden, RN, coordinator of practical nursing, Indian Meridian Vo Tech; and Mary Lawler, RN, assistant professor of nursing at Langston University, get together to plan learning experiences for students at Stillwater Medical Center.

Jim and Charlene Tugman have traveled the roads from Vinita to Langston and have been rewarded with the culmination of degree requirements, resulting in their graduation from Langston University. The husband-wife team, who are the parents of five children and are farmers and ranchers in their "spare time", have made the one-and one-half drive from Vinita to the LU Urban Center in Tulsa for the past two and one-half years to make this particular dream come true.

Dr. John Montgomery, chairman of the Board of Regents for A&M Colleges; "Bill Parker, retired employee at LU; and James A. Simpson, chairman of the Chemistry Department at LU, get together for an informal chat following a commencement convocation.

Carolyn Potts, a business major, had the opportunity of tutoring young students on campus from the Upward Bound and Best For Life programs.

Two freshman students talk with representatives from the Veterans Administration Hospital in Oklahoma City. The ladies were on hand to share information about career opportunities with the agency.

Lawrence Braddy, a Langston resident and a retired LU graduate, finds the fishing good at the Langston University "Kappa" Pond. He also stated that the pond is a good source of food and recreation. He hardly misses a day at the pond and says he's caught some nice fish there.

Would you believe that the three young ladies are tellers at the Eighty Niner Bank of Coyle? It must have been Halloween. Left to right: Michelle Carrier, Francine Moss and Elise Hart.

Thelma Holly, part-time supervisor of the Student Union Gameroom, has involved LU students in activity participating in the Development Foundation's "Endowment Fund Drive." At the time the above picture was taken, the container which she had placed in the gameroom had netted $70.50. Assistaing Harold Robinson, director of development, count students' donations are Wendell Price, (Harold Robinson), Patrice R. Lewis, and Christopher Crowell. Students were encouraged to continue to give whatever amount they were able to contribute toward helping to reach the endowment fund goal.

Harold Robinson helps Rick James, president of the Beta Epsilon Chapter of the Ph Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc., count the money raised for the Endowment Fund by the fraternity. The Fraternity deposited $128.54 in the $125,000-drive fund.
