A new program designed to help the nation's graduate schools seek out potential students from minority groups is underway this fall.

Called the Minority Graduate Student Locator Service, the program is offered by Educational Testing Service. The service is offered free to both students and institutions.

Students will have a chance to voluntarily complete a special 17-item questionnaire as one step towards entering graduate school.

Admissions officers may then contact students directly and invite the applications of those whose particular interests could be served by their schools graduate offerings.

Further information can be obtained from the Langston University counselors.
